One would be hard pressed to find a couple that better exemplifies the importance of hard work, character and commitment to getting things done than Scott and Jesselie Anderson. Their impact on nearly every aspect of the state is far reaching and their desire to serve the community in which they live is an example to us all.

A. Scott Anderson is president and chief executive officer of Zions First National Bank. Zions Bank is Utah's oldest financial institution and is the only local bank with a statewide distribution of branches. Zions operates 107 full service branches throughout Utah and 25 full service branches in Idaho. In addition to a wide range of traditional banking services, Zions offers a comprehensive array of investment, mortgage, and insurance services and has a network of loan origination offices for small businesses, nationwide. Founded in 1873, Zions Bank has been serving the communities of the Intermountain West for nearly 130 years.

A native of Salt Lake City, Anderson joined Zions Bank in December of 1991.

Anderson received a bachelor's degree in philosophy and economics from Columbia University in New York. He also received a master's degree in economics and international studies from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland.

Active in community affairs, Anderson is currently serving on a number of business and non-profit boards. His wife, Jesselie, has said that one of the most rewarding parts of his work is that the two get to travel the state together and learn a little more about so many communities.

Jesselie Barlow Anderson was born in California and raised in Layton. She received her bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Utah in 1968 before beginning a 12-year career with Utah's congressional delegation in Washington D.C. In 1981, she married Scott in Tokyo.

The Anderson's spent seven years in Tokyo before moving to California. When Scott Anderson took a position with Zions Bank in 1991, they moved to Utah.

Jesselie Anderson has said that service is an integral part of our obligation to each other. Not only has she said that – but she lives it everyday. She remains active in her community serving on nearly a dozen boards and committees, including as a member of the Board of Trustees for both Salt Lake Community College and Westminster College.

“I feel very strongly that we need to give back when circumstances allow us to,” said Jesselie

The Anderson's have three children and two grandchildren, including a son who graduated from Snow College.

When they can find time for themselves, the Andersons enjoy spending time at their farm in Huntsville or traveling to the North Shore of Massachusetts.
